

It's Time to Speak Out

May 7, 2015

It is imperative that we choose a new way to fund and provide services to those in need. This patchwork approach is inefficient and ineffective. If our state's financial situation is unstable, then the programs we offer are likewise unstable and unsustainable. If we continue to cater to special interest groups despite our precarious financial situation, we will further disrupt our tax base, which will exacerbate the situation. If we do not begin to streamline the programs we offer to our citizens in need by identifying the ones that provide the most assistance in a more efficient way, then the State of Connecticut will continue to lag behind many other states that provide a better value. If not now, then when?

Sincerely,
